The database i am working on has thousands of records and i dont want that any record should be automatically deleted. So how i can do that? is there any event or something else that needs to be done? I am using oracle 11g as my database. A: I don't think you are going to be able to achieve that with just events. It is important to consider that there are two types of events you can trigger on your SQL*Plus session. In one case, you can make SQL*Plus execute an SQL statement, which can take place directly or indirectly by means of SQL*Plus messages, such as BEGIN and CHECKPOINT. These events can be triggered using the statement SQL*Plus EXIT or by interrupting the SQL*Plus session with Control-G. Another thing that comes to mind could be periodically executing a DUMP, like SELECT * from x; FROM DUAL; this was the first time in Britain that such a high proportion of the population had so openly expressed public support for abortion. To understand why they were so popular, I think it helps to look at the basic details of the trial and the opinion poll that preceded it
